

THE SUDSY CHALLENGE

QUESTIONS YOU MIGHT GET ASKED

WHY ARE YOU IN THE SAME CLOTHES FOR THREE DAYS?

So glad you asked! I'm taking part in The Sudsy Challenge to help support the thousands of Australians and New Zealanders who are experiencing homelessness.

WHAT'S THE SUDSY CHALLENGE?

The Sudsy Challenge is about keeping your kit on for three days, talking about it with those around you and raising funds and awareness for Orange Sky, so everyone can have access to a laundry van like Sudsy.

SO, WHO IS SUDSY?

Sudsy is the name of Orange Sky's first ever mobile laundry van built in 2014. Since then, the organisation has grown A LOT. They now have 33 services and support people doing it tough across Australia and New Zealand.

WHY THREE DAYS?

It took Nic and Lucas, the co-founders of Orange Sky, three days (and three sets of washing machines and dryers) to build Sudsy and get the van working. On day three, a friend named Jordan used the service and taught Nic and Lucas that while clean clothes were important, it was the conversation and connection that mattered more.

WHAT MADE YOU SIGN UP FOR THE CHALLENGE?

Every day there are thousands of people who are experiencing homelessness. I want to support Orange Sky and the friends who rely on the service by wearing the same set of clothes for three days and talking with people in my community about homelessness.

WHERE DOES THE MONEY GO?

Funds raised from The Sudsy Challenge will help Orange Sky achieve their mission to positively connect communities. Your donation will help to provide friends with access to clean clothes, warm showers and genuine connection.

HOW CAN I HELP?

You can make a donation to support me or sign up yourself! $24AUD or $26NZD provides a friend with access to clean clothes, safe showers and genuine connection, so every little bit counts.
